A bit of Downtown History - 631 Jefferson St. Lafayette LA

In 1880, one of the Monnier family six children, Emilie Monnier Falk, wife of Israel Falk, exchanged her inherited tract of land for this downtown lot, where the Grado Building exists. At the same time, that part of Jefferson Street began to change in its character from a mixture of residential and commercial buildings into Lafayette's Central Business District. When the Grao Building was built, the 600 block of Jefferson Street was mostly residential. By 1915, when the brothers Leonardo and Vincenza Grado, purchased the property, civic and commercial uses had begun to outnumber residential uses. The Grados converted this Creole cottage into a commercial building, and the property has remained in the Grado family since that time. The building is associated with a number of successful Lafayette businesses that began operations there, most notably Paul's Jewelry, Chris' Po-Boys, and most commonly known, Pamplona Tapas Restaurant and Bar, located at 631 Jefferson St.

We keep you up-to-date on what's hitting the market and being sold in Acadiana...and our friends over at Developing Lafayette will tell you what's happening with those properties!
